

DE GOLYER CASES ARE DISMISSED

About $18,000 Paid to Creditors on Claims Left Nearly Three Years Ago.

HAS MADE MONEY IN THE WEST

And DeGolyer is Doing the Honorable Thing by Paying Old Accounts in Full.

Arthur H. DeGolyer has settled in full with his creditors whom he left when he disappeared from Seymour in March, 1909. A few days ago Judge O. H. Montgomery made a trip about which he was unusually reticent. On his return he brought with him $15,000 with which to settle in full the claims which have been standing against Mr. DeGolyer. $3,000 more was needed making $18,000 in all to make the complete settlement, and this was sent here afterwards. The largest claim was held by the Dickinson Trust Co. of Richmond, amounting to about $9,500.00; the American Central Life Insurance Co. had a claim of about $500.00 and there were numerous claims in and about Seymour ranging from $500.00 to a few dollars each. When the claims were paid, a petition was presented to the creditors for signature, and they signed very gladly, asking that cases which were pending against Mr. DeGolyer in the circuit court be dismissed with the understanding that all the claims were to be paid in full. The dismissal was entered in the circuit court Wednesday afternoon about three o'clock.

Mr. DeGolyer formerly conducted a large real estate and loan business with offices in the Pfaffenberger building. He did considerable trading on his own account and became heavily involved, so that he was unable to meet his obligations. On March 20, 1909 he made a deed of assignment of all his real estate and personal property to Seba A. Barnes for the benefit of his creditors. The deed of assignment was filed at Brownstown on the following Friday and Mr. Barnes took charge of his trust. When the assets were converted into cash the creditors were paid about 6 1/2 cents on the dollar.

Immediately after the assignment was made Mr. DeGolyer left presumably for the Southwest and no one in Seymour unless two or three very near relatives have known of his whereabouts since that time until a few days ago when Judge Montgomery was asked to visit him and arrange for settling the claims which were standing against him.

Although his present location is still kept secret, word is brought back that he is doing well in business and is living a straightforward, honorable life. The best indication of this is the fact that he has used $18,000 of money which he has made since leaving here to square up his former indebtedness. His friends and acquaintances here as well as his creditors will be glad to know of his present success, and of the honorable manner in which he is settling with his creditors.

DIED IN TEXAS Eugene Huckleberry Died at Waco Wednesday Afternoon.

A telegram received this afternoon announced the death of Eugene Huckleberry, son of Rev. F. M. Huckleberry, pastor of the First Baptist church here, Wednesday afternoon at Waco, Texas. Only a few days ago the family had a letter from him, indicating that he was in his usual vigorous health, and the unexpected message announcing his death was a decided shock both to the family and to their many friends. Nothing is given in the telegram to indicate the cause of death.

Eugene Huckleberry was born at Horace, Ind. and was twenty-six years old. He spent several weeks in Seymour about three years ago. He was traveling salesman for a New York underwear firm and was having a good business. He was to have been married in the near future to a young lady in Waco and had gone to that city to spend the holiday season. He leaves his parents, Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Huckleberry of Seymour, two brothers, William of Logansport, and Frank of Dardanelle, Arkansas, and two sisters, Miss Myrtle and Miss Almyra, the latter of whom is teaching school at Lettis.

The remains will be shipped to Seymour this afternoon and will probably reach Seymour Saturday morning. The burial will be in the family lot at Franklin probably on Monday.

DIED. RUDDICK.—Mrs. Alice Ruddick, age 28 years, wife of Edward Ruddick, died this afternoon at 3 o'clock of tuberculosis. Besides the husband and one child, the parents survive.

Entertained Missionary Society. The members of the Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Bush. Mrs. Gladys Kyte sang a solo and Miss Edna Dobbins pianist and Miss Frieda Aufderheide, violin, rendered some excellent music. In addition, interesting papers were read by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Charles Kessler and Mrs. H. C. Gast. At the close of the program refreshments were served.

License Refused. The commissioners met today to consider the remonstrance against granting a liquor license to Grover Davis at Kurtz. A. C. Branaman represented Davis and John M. Lewis the remonstrators. It was contended that Davis was not a fit person to receive a license. The commissioners refused to grant the license.

Primary Date Set. The Democratic committee at a meeting at Brownstown this afternoon set Feb. 22 as the date for the county primary.

ATTENDANCE QUITE LARGE

The First Day's Sessions of the Farmers' Institute Very Successful.

PROGRAMS WERE INTERESTING

Choice Display of Farm Products Attracting Attention.—Entered For Premiums.

The first day's sessions of the Farmers' Institute were highly successful both in matter of program and attendance and the management is satisfied it will be the best institute yet held in Seymour. The meetings are being held in the Majestic theatre and the display of farm and other products is in society hall.

The attendance this morning was very fair for an opening session and this afternoon large numbers, some of them from distant parts of the county, were present. J. M. Johnson presided and the invocation was by Rev. J. W. Hawk of the Presbyterian church. Miss Effie White was on the program for music. John Kilgas of Chestnut Ridge gave an excellent talk on "My Orchard."

E. C. Martindale of Wilkinson, who has a state wide reputation as an institute lecturer, gave his first talk on "How to grow more and better corn" and the address was full of valuable and practical instruction for the farmers. He had on the stage a large chart with which to illustrate his lecture.

In the afternoon Edwin Schneck was the presiding officer. The program included music by Miss Edna Kasting. Jacob Jordan was down for a talk on the very interesting subject "Incubators and Brooders." Mr. Martindale's subject for the afternoon was "Manure and its care and application in improving the soil." A discussion followed. On account of there being few young people present at the afternoon session, the subject previously announced for Miss Leonard of Indianapolis, was changed to "Woman's part on the farm."

The program for tonight has been prepared so as to be of general interest to the public and the people of the city as well as of the country are cordially invited. The program will include a number of musical selections and readings. Mr. Martindale will speak on "The boy" while Miss Andrews will give an address on "The influence of the high school on the girl."

There is a spirited contest for the various premiums offered by the local merchants. Corn, seeds of various kinds, apples, canned goods, vegetables, quilts, cushions and many kinds of fancy work and various other articles are on display, forming an interesting feature of the institute.

WEDS FIRST LOVE After Annulment of Marriage to a Soldier.

The Indianapolis Sun Wednesday evening contained the following account of the marriage of a young lady who is well known in Seymour:

"I've loved this boy since I was 14, and he carried my books home from school for me, and now he is mine," was the explanation of Myrtle Cunningham, who became Mrs. Clifford Gizzell by the act of Rev. A. B. Philpott of the Central Christian church Tuesday night, regarding her second secret marriage and romance. The wedding was without the knowledge of her foster-mother, Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, 153 West Pratt street, just as she had been married the first time. Before she married when she was under legal age to a soldier in the United States army.

Because she repented her first marriage to Andrew Ross of Salem, Ind., and returned to the home of her foster-mother in this city, her father, Claude Cunningham of Seymour, Ind., succeeded, three weeks ago, in having the ceremony performed in Columbus, O., Sept. 2, 1911, annulled by an Ohio court, inasmuch as he declared she was only 17, though she gave her age as 18. After the marriage in Columbus, Andrew Ross took her straight to his home in Salem. The life of the little town palled in just three weeks. So she left her husband and soon was again in the home of her forgiving foster-mother.

Mrs. Jessie Cunningham was hurt by her daughter's actions, but welcomed her back. She warned Myrtle against rushing into another love affair. But Clifford Grizzell was undaunted by the error of his sweetheart.

Mrs. Cunningham saw how the wind was blowing, and with the assistance of the girl's father, succeeded in having the marriage annulled. The foster-mother intended that the girl be single again, so that young Gizzell might pay her honorable court.

"I got a telephone call Tuesday night saying Myrtle would be out somewhere for dinner, but I didn't think much about it," she explained. "Then, in the evening Myrtle and Clifford called on me and told me they were married."

Mystery still clouds another curious circumstance in the judging of the age of Miss Cunningham, which might upset the whole romance. According to attaches of the county clerk's office, the couple stated Miss Cunningham was born Nov. 8, 1891. This would make her age 20 years, 1 month and 23 days of age. If this be true, her marriage to Andrew Ross Sept. 2, 1911, came after she was 18. But Mrs. Cunningham says the girl was just 18 years old Nov. 20, 1911, and hence was under age when she married Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Grizzell have taken apartments at 810 North Pennsylvania street. Young Grizzell is a printer and lived at 911 North Alabama street.

SUIT AGAINST SOLON WILCOX

Wealthy Farmer Charged With Alienating Affections of Jerome Dixon's Wife.

DEMAND FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Wilcox Paid His Wife Sum of $9,000 When She Received a Divorce.

Solon Wilcox who has valuable interests in the western part of Jackson county and who has received considerable notoriety recently, is in more trouble. He is defendant in a big damage suit just filed at Bedford. The Bedford Democrat says:

Solon Wilcox, a wealthy farmer near Fort Ritner, who is just out of one expensive lawsuit in which he paid his wife something more than $9,000 just before she died and after she has been granted a divorce from him, is made defendant in a $10,000 damage suit filed by Jerome Dixon, by his attorneys, Boruff & Boruff, Dixon alleging that Wilcox has alienated his wife's affections.

The plaintiff complains of the defendant and says that on or about the 1st of February, 1910, Emma Dixon was the wife of the plaintiff, as defendant well knew. That on February 1, while plaintiff and Emma Dixon were living happily together as husband and wife, the defendant wrongfully contriving and intending to injure the plaintiff and to deprive him of her comfort, society and assistance, maliciously persuaded and enticed her to depart and leave the plaintiff and that the said Emma Dixon, through the persuasion of the defendant and through his blandishments and promises was induced to and did then and there depart and leave the plaintiff without his consent and contrary to his desires.

It is further alleged that after he had induced the plaintiff's wife to leave her husband the defendant admitted and received her and kept her at his house and harbored her against the consent and wish of the plaintiff. Wherefore, the plaintiff alleges, he has been and is still deprived by the defendant of the comfort, society and aid of his wife, and has suffered great distress of body and mind and suffered loss of her services and society to his damage in the sum of 10,000, for which he asks judgment.

THE FIRE LOSSES

In Seymour Since Present Fire Department Was Installed. W. S. Everhart, chief of the fire department, has compiled a record of fires and fire losses in Seymour since the present department was installed April 16, 1906.

In that year there were 15 fires with an aggregate loss of $1,710.60. Mrs. Mary C. Galbraith's house on Myers street was the first one to which the department was called. In 1907 the loss at 18 fires was $1,265 and in the following year $9325.80 worth of property was destroyed in 32 fires. In 1909 there were 36 fires and a loss of $61,091.60 and in 1910 the loss at 30 fires was $4,741.30.

During 1911 there were only 20 fires but the loss was heavy, amounting to $64,448.50. The total losses during the six years reached the sum of $142,582.80.

In a fire in the afternoon of October 9, 1908, Mrs. Elizabeth Vanhorn was fatally burned, living but a short time after being injured.

The night of August 1, 1908, George Wolfe lost a horse in a fire and the Cordes Hardware Co. lost two in a fire the morning of Oct. 2, 1908; in the same fire John Colvin lost a cow. So that 1908 in one way was the worst in the fire history of the city.

The heaviest financial loss in the six years in one fire was the loss the night of July 25 last year when so much property in the block at the corner of Chestnut and Tipton streets was destroyed.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE BYPRODUCT.

The best things of life come incidentally.

They are byproducts.

Before you have gained wisdom in experience you fancy the battle of life is easiest to win by frontal attack and you smash away at it. Later on you come to see that a flank movement is best.

That is to say:

You try to do something by direct effort and fail. Then you turn your attention to something else, and, lo, you find that which you sought at first.

For instance:
You want to be happy. You try to make yourself happy. You try hard and fail. Then you quit trying and conclude that happiness is not won in that way. You conclude that it is best to make others happy. You try that as the first thing you know you are happy.

It is the byproduct.

In looking for something else what you want turns up. You have won by the flank movement.

There's popularity.

You want to be popular and you try to be. But somehow your smiles do not win. Somehow people come to see that you are working at the popularity business. You fail. Then you conclude it is better to deserve popularity than to win it; that it is better to try to be lovable than to be lovely.

Then you are popular.

A woman wants to be beautiful. She follows the directions of the experts in the Sunday papers, haunts the beauty parlors, uses face creams and cosmetics and fails. She concludes it is better to have good health and a beautiful soul. She perseveres and—she is beautiful.

It may be so even in making money. You try to get rich quick. You fail. Then you conclude you are not cut out for a millionaire. You decide to go slowly and safely and be content.

And the money comes.

It is a case of fame. He who sets out to be famous and thinks only of fame is apt to fail. When he reorganizes his life and concludes that it is better to be famous than to acquire it he wins fame by the flank movement.

It is the byproduct.

We are built that way.

NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY

Artisan Who Revolutionized for World a Great Industry.

Charles Peterson Discovered the Modern Method of Molding Iron Pipe and Almost Solved Secret of Aviation.

By E. J. EDWARDS.

Charles Peterson was one of the unheralded obscure captains of industry who nevertheless have been of great service in the building of material prosperity of the United States. His name is still a familiar one to some of those who are engaged in manufacturing the iron pipes now so largely used for the carrying of water from reservoirs and gas from tanks through the streets of our cities. In one of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation Peterson is still spoken of with respect, although it is in the most vague manner that his name is associated with the commodities produced by that subsidiary company. You see, it was Peterson who revolutionized for the world the method of making iron pipe, thereby adding millions to the general wealth.

I first met Charles Peterson about 30 years ago. He was then employed as a skilled artisan; in fact, all his life he was so employed, and it was while he was engaged in the manufacture of iron tubes or pipes by hand that he had conceived the idea of the apparatus by means of which today iron pipe is molded by machinery, a revolutionary process.

"The discovery was simple enough," Peterson said to me with a slight accent which betrayed his Swedish birth, of which he was very proud. "I was employed to make hand molds which were used in manufacturing iron pipes, and one day the thought slid into my head that if all this could be done by machinery it would be better or more accurately done, and it would be possible to turn out four or five times as many pipes in a day as could be done by hand work. So I got to thinking, and after a little thinking about it the idea for the apparatus came to me, and I made the model. It worked perfectly, and they tell me it has passed into general use."

"What did you get out of it?" I asked.

He smiled. "Only gratification, nothing else. I made the machine, and it worked. That was enough; somebody else got the money."

"But," said he, "the idea of another kind of machine has come to me, and if it were not for one thing I would make a machine which would drive a balloon or a large kite in any direction, even against the wind. I have long thought that if birds can fly, even heavy birds like eagles or wild geese, there is no reason why a machine which imitated their motions could not be adapted to a kite or a balloon or even fitted with wings, like large sails."

"I worked out the machine all right, but there was just one thing that was lacking. Of course, I could not use coal for generating steam; that would be too heavy. I invented an ammonia engine, but I found that was too expensive and was also unreliable. So I have put my machine aside. Some day some one will discover some kind of fuel which can be used in a machine capable of driving a balloon or a kite in any required direction, even against the wind. When that fuel is obtained I may show the world that it is possible to fly. If I can do that the honor then attached to my name will be worth to me a great deal more than any money."

About eight years ago Charles Peterson died. He lived long enough to learn that the fuel—gasoline—which he expected some one to discover had, in fact, been discovered. But he was old, somewhat infirm, and unable to take advantage of this discovery. And yet as he heard of the initial achievements of the Wright brothers and of the others in the field of aviation, he felt a sense of self-congratulation, for he believed with all his soul that could he have had gasoline 30 years ago, he would have been the first to teach the world how flying could be achieved.

Amazon Rice Raiders.

"Trouble, connected with the high price of rice, again broke out at Pootung on Tuesday, and the fact that the events of the day did not culminate in a riot was due in some measure to fear on the part of the rice shop men and the lack of a sufficient force on the part of the local police," says the North China Daily News. "Had the police been strong enough to have attacked the mob, which was helping itself to rice, there would undoubtedly have been a scuffle."

"As usual in trouble of this kind, it was led by the women of the place, these being for the most part of the class finding a living on the river. Without attempting to bargain with the rice dealers, they simply walked into the shops and helped themselves to the rice."

"The shopkeepers called upon the police, but for a time no assistance was forthcoming. They tried to shut up their shops, but this they were unable to do in the face of the crowd outside."

UPPER INDIANA IS IN ZONE OF EARTHQUAKE

A Distinct Shock Was Felt In Four States.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The steel girders of skyscrapers creaked when two distinct earthquake tremors chased one another up and down Chicago's corporate spine yesterday.

The first tremor, which was felt at 10:18 o'clock, distributed itself over practically northern Illinois and parts of Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana. The second tremor, three minutes later was not felt in quite so wide an area.

The movements of the earth were felt as far west as Davenport, Ia., and as far east as Fort Wayne, Ind. At Bloomington, Ill., in central Illinois, there was but slight evidence of the 'quake. At Aurora, Ill., the tremor caused the explosion of a great tank of gasoline at the plant of the Fox River Packing company. When the Aurora Beacon went to press in the afternoon it was noticed that the paper did not look natural. The news showed an inexplicable desire to slip off the paper. An investigation showed that the press had been jarred from its base and was not working normally.

Among the Illinois cities and towns that reported the tremors distinctly felt are Joliet, Galesburg, Aurora, Rockford, Kankakee, Mendota, Dixon, Elgin, Freeport and Galena. In Racine, Milwaukee, Janesville and other Wisconsin cities the shock was distinctly felt.

Munsey, charged with conspiracy in the transportation of dynamite on passenger trains in violation of federal laws, were given the ten days they asked in which to plead. They are to appear in court again Jan. 12 to answer to charges in the indictment returned last Saturday.

"Nothing to Say."—The Colonel.

New York, Jan. 3.—To those who think that Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy for the presidential nomination this year is the only solution, and to those who would like to be assured once more that he doesn't want to run and cannot be made to, the colonel himself has only one reply, which is: "Nothing to say." He told the reporters who called on him that he was not talking politics and could not be drawn into comment on the efforts to get his name before the voters. "When I have any announcement to make, I will make it publicly and make it myself," he declared.

Woman Killed at Crossing.

Mitchell, Ind., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Sam Gray, aged forty-five, was killed at the station crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad here. Mrs. Gray was on her way to visit a neighbor and was struck by a freight engine which was running backward at a speed of about twenty miles an hour.

THIEF FIGHTS WITH DUMMY

But the Automaton Was No Match for the Intruder and Was Knocked Out.

San Francisco.—A burglar who jimmied his way into the bachelor apartments of A. B. Treadwell, police judge, had a desperate hand-to-hand battle with an automaton, operated by the electric burglar alarm, which the judge had devised.

The dummy man was no match for the burglar and now lies hopelessly wrecked with his head crushed, but from the appearance of the room the electric man put up a hard fight. Chairs were overturned and one was broken. The weapon with which the burglar won the battle was a heavy window weight.

The judge lives in a cozy flat. In an alcove just at the head of the stairs stands, or rather stood, a well-designed figure of a man made of plaster of paris and metal. It was life-size and represented a man reading a paper. It was really a work of art and most lifelike.

In the hollow head of the machine-made man was an electric light, which was connected with the house current, so that when any one stepped on the top step of the stairs the current was turned on and the man moved. When the burglar stepped on that step he thought his time had come, as the man seemed ready for him. When he stepped from the step the light went out, but, like a brave thief, he went at his enemy in the dark, using his window weight as a club.

The wreck of the electric man tells the rest of the story. It head is crushed and the one-time work of art is a shattered mass of plaster and metal. The thief escaped.

USED MAIL TO SELL OPIUM

Inspector Says Plan Was to Use Playing Card Boxes—Receipts $200 a Day.

New York.—For sending opium through the mails, in violation of the new penal code, Lee Dick, twenty-six years old, said by postal inspectors to have carried on the most extensive traffic in opium in the country, was held in $1,000 bail for trial by United States Commissioner Craig.

Testifying before Commissioner Craig, Inspector Cortelyou said that Dick received approximately $200 daily for the opium he sent to all parts of the country.

His plan, the inspector said, was to send opium in small tin boxes and playing-card boxes. His patrons, according to the inspector, returned the boxes with the money. Mr. Cortelyou declared Dick's customers are scattered all over the country, as far south as Florida and west almost to the Pacific coast.

Until the new penal code was adopted by the government, persons who sent opium and other habit-forming drugs through the mails were not liable to arrest. The only penalty was confiscation of the drugs when found.

Under the new law, the offender is liable to a fine of $1,000 and two years' imprisonment.

TWO WERE BLIND; NOW SEE

Baltimore Doctor Restores Sense of Men Impaired Fifteen Years Ago.

Baltimore, Md.—Dr. Alexander D. McConachie has succeeded in restoring the sight of two men who were blind.

Although their sight is not wholly clear they can recognize their friends. Dr. McConachie is still in charge of the patients and expects to have their sight fully restored within the next few weeks.

Louis Haley, 40 years old, one of the patients, was stricken blind fifteen years ago while working at his trade as a tailor. He worked several years after being stricken, but as time passed his work became too slow and he was forced to give it up. He went to work in the hospital, where his case was first noticed by Dr. McConachie.

John Carr, the other blind man, was injured in a shop in South Baltimore. The belting of a machine slipped and struck him in the face, causing him to lose his sight. He was first taken to the Mercy hospital, but was later taken to the Franklin Square hospital, where he came under the care of Dr. McConachie.

Delaware Party Enjoy Reverse Hunt, in Which Quarry Escapes From Hounds.

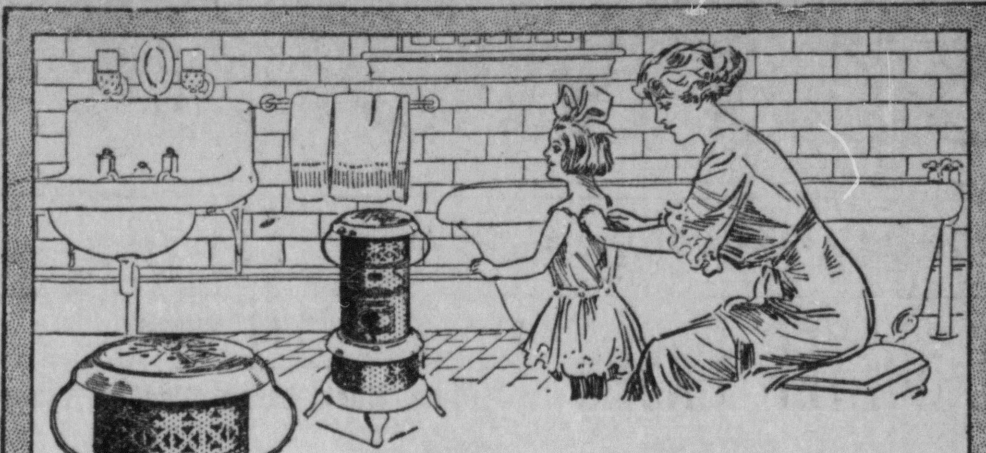

Wilmington, Del.—A party of Delaware fox hunters, who included Joseph Becker, Edward Neher, John M. Hance, John B. Traitt and others, unearthed a fine specimen near Newcastle.

The hounds ran well for a time, but suddenly wheeled around and sought cover, with the fox after them.

Hunters joined in the reverse chase. It continued for several miles. Finally other dogs joined the pack and frightened Reynard away. The fox then escaped.

GRIM FOE TAKES "FIGHTING BOB"

Admiral Evans Dead After Illness of Three Hours.

AN ATTACK OF INDIGESTION

Seizure Followed a Luncheon at Which the Old Admiral Was the Gayest of the Gay, and in Three Hours, Bluff Sea-Fighter, Who Had Faced Many a Storm of Shot and Shell, Had Bowled to the Final Foe.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Following an illness of less than three hours, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, familiarly known to the American people as "Fighting Bob" Evans, died at his home in this city at 5 o'clock last evening. An acute attack of indigestion which came on after he had eaten his luncheon, was the cause of death.

With Admiral Evans at the time of his death were his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Harold Sewall. Another daughter, the wife of Captain C. C. Marsh of the United States navy, arrived later from Norfolk. His son, Frank Taylor Evans, is a lieutenant in the navy, attached to the United States ship Mohican, now stationed at Olongapo, in the Philippines. Arrangements for the funeral have been placed in the hands of the navy department. Admiral Evans's body will be accorded all military honors and the burial will take place Friday afternoon in Arlington national cemetery.

According to members of the family, Admiral Evans was to all appearances in the best of health up to the time of his fatal illness. At luncheon he was the gayest person at the table, and laughed and joked all through the meal.

Shortly before 5 o'clock Admiral Evans complained of difficulty in breathing. His daughter, Mrs. Sewall, who was in the room at the moment, propped him up with pillows. The abdomen became distended and the admiral's difficulty in getting his breath increased. Suddenly his head dropped to one side as he lay in this half-sitting posture. In that instant death came.

A Notable Record.

To the country generally "Fighting Bob" Evans was the hero of the new navy. It was his fortune to be on the spot in several seas when decisive action was necessary to uphold his country's dignity, and his method of standing up for the rights of Americans and the glory of the flag sent responsive thrills from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Evans was a commanding figure in big things, a history maker, and although he was denied at the close of his long service the honor he wanted most, a vice admiralty, there was no doubt that he found some compensation in the enthusiastic regard of the people.

In Valparaiso, in 1891, with one gunboat, the Yorktown, to back his words, he bristled up to the Chilean government, brought about an apology for an assault on American sailors, and did as much to enhance the reputation of his country as could have been gained by a battle. It was off Valparaiso that he got his name, "Fighting Bob."

He was born in Floyd county, Virginia, on Aug. 18, 1846, and was the son of Dr. Samuel Andrew Jackson Evans. In his boyhood he shot rabbits and got such schooling as rural Virginia afforded in those days. When his father died in 1855, he went to live with his uncle in Washington. Here he attended Gonzaga college, a Catholic institution. In 1860 he was offered an appointment to the naval academy, where he was graduated in 1863. In the civil war he participated in the desperate assault upon and capture of Fort Fisher. A forlorn hope made up of volunteers from the fleet, was sent against the works, regarded up to that time as impregnable. It was one of the most sanguinary assaults of the war. When it was over Midshipman Evans lay amid corpses piled in the trench at the foot of the breastworks, fairly riddled with bullets and half strangled between the dead and dying. He had been shot through both legs and had received many wounds in the body. A bullet through the right knee caused a permanent stiffness. Evans was promoted by act of congress for conspicuous gallantry, and sailed for China in the Delaware, the flagship of Vice Admiral Rowan.

Upon his return to the United States lieutenant Commander Evans was assigned to ordnance duty until 1870, the year he married Charlotte Taylor, a daughter of Frank Taylor of Washington and a granddaughter of General Daniel Morgan. In 1881 he was detailed as equipment officer at the Washington navy yard and became much interested in the practical working of iron and steel. He was a member of the first advisory board, whose report laid the foundation of the new navy. It was upon a resolution offered by Evans that steel was adopted as the material for the construction of our fighting ships.

In 1893 Evans was made a captain, and in 1898, as commander of the battleship Iowa, took part in the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Santiago harbor. Captain Evans was made rear admiral on Feb. 11, 1901. He was in command in the far east in 1904, and was retired in 1908.

STRIKE MAY TIE UP ANTHRACITE MINES

Recognition of the Union is Insistently Demanded.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 4.—"When we are unable to get recognition of our union and our demands, strike is the only weapon left. Just as nations war when their rights are interfered with, so we must battle when insults are piled upon us."

With these words John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers, greeted 6,000 mine workers last night at a mass meeting in Plymouth. White advocated peace, if peace could right the wrongs of the miners, but he declared in a loud voice that the time has arrived when the demands of the Pottsville convention must be made a reality if the organization is to live and prosper.

He declared that the organization was not in need of money, and that it had the financial backing to carry on a struggle if a repetition of 1902 conditions were forced upon union labor. The miners' chief declared he was ready to give his best efforts to secure the demands the miners seek. He argued against delay and favored fighting the issues out squarely at this time. He charged the operators with irregularities of various sorts, and claimed the bad mining conditions were responsible for such accidents as those at Throop and Cherry Hill, where hundreds of miners had their lives snuffed out.

President White urged the miners to stand like soldiers for their cause. He declared he was a lover of peace and sought peace at all times, but did not wish to purchase it with the rights of the mine workers.

EFFECTUAL PROTESTS

Fish Commissioner Declines to Renew Seine Permits.

Indianapolis, Jan. 1.—George W. Miles, state fish and game commissioner, has declined to renew any permits issued to persons last year for the holding and use of seines for taking carp and similar fish from the streams. The seines held under the permit are either being destroyed or converted into fly-nets for farm horses. The decision not to renew followed a protest made by sportsmen over the state, who claimed the seines, while purchased for a perfectly proper purpose, were being used by the holders for taking all kinds of fish from the streams.

THE PRESIDENT IS DETERMINED

Makes Plain His Position Regarding the Nomination.

HE IS IN THE FIGHT TO STAY

"Nothing but Death Can Keep Me Out of the Fight Now," Mr. Taft is Quoted as Saying in Answer to the Many Rumors and Suggestions Concerning the Possibility of His Retirement From the Race.

Washington, Jan. 4.—President Taft spoke plainly and to the point for the first time in his occupancy of the White House and for the first time since Colonel Roosevelt and others in the Republican party began practically to doubt his availability for re-election, when he said concerning his immediate future in presidential politics:

"Nothing but death can keep me out of the fight now."

The president added that he had no objection to this statement being made public. The president, it may be said, was not goaded into making this statement. He was in good humor and was just as kindly and pleasant as usual, but he evidently felt that in view of recent rumors and statements and especially in view of Governor Osborn's suggestion that he should retire, the time had come when his exact position should be made known.

For the first time, too, Colonel Roosevelt's position was made known by personal friends in this city. They declared that Roosevelt is in the fight for the nomination and added that they personally waited on Colonel Roosevelt several months ago for the purpose of ascertaining his wishes in the matter. They state that they then declared to Roosevelt that in their opinion Taft could not be re-elected if renominated. They went over the ground with Roosevelt, and declare that they left the ex-president with assurances that they could go forward in their work of organization on his behalf; that he would not interfere with their work, but that they need not expect from him any positive declaration as to his own candidacy; that he would merely sit tight, using one of the ex-president's favorite expressions. So that it may now be stated that the Roosevelt movement has not been a haphazard one without direction, without head or tail, but from the start has had formation and determined purpose, and moreover that the colonel has been fully familiar with what has been going on and that he acquiesced in it and sanctioned it.

It is suspected that President Taft and several of his advisers have all along been well aware of the underlying features of this Roosevelt movement and that knowledge of it, together with recent events, induced the president to make his firm declaration for publication.

Republicans prominent in the affairs of New England, who have all along been especially friendly to Taft and who are not at all friendly to Roosevelt, feel that the situation is becoming so intolerable that eventually it may be necessary to seek for a compromise candidate, and it is their prediction that by the time the Republicans assemble in Chicago for their convention, the situation will have developed several Republican candidates for the presidency.

Retire? Never!—La Follette.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Senator La Follette's invasion of Chicago was preceded with an emphatic statement from his campaign manager that he will not withdraw from the race for the Republican nomination for president until the gavel falls in the Chicago convention that will name the party nominee. This was the answer the La Follette manager gave to reports that he was considering getting out of the race.

Bryan Not a Candidate.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 4.—"I cannot conceive of any condition that would make it possible for me to consider the question of my becoming the candidate for president in 1912." So declared W. J. Bryan shortly after his arrival here from Havana. Mr. Bryan expects to attend the Jackson banquet in Washington.

Queen Wilhelmina is unofficially reported to be in an interesting condition.

HIS SALARY WOULD NOT PAY HIS BILLS

Percy Vanderloef Made Free With His Firm's Money.

New York, Jan. 4.—After he had been arraigned in the Center street police court on a charge of larceny, Percy G. Vanderloef, who was treasurer of the VanKeuren & Thornton company, wholesale dealers in dry goods, and in a period of ten years stole about $150,000 from the company, was sent to the Tombs. He made a technical plea of not guilty, but he has confessed and it is understood that he will plead guilty when he is indicted.

If Vanderloef's friends and lawyers are to be believed he could not keep up the pace of his business associates on a salary of $4,000 a year and at the same time pay $1,800 alimony to his wife, who divorced him, and $600 a year for the support of his son. In order to support his mother and sister, with whom he lived in East Orange, Vanderloef says that he had to have more money, but it is also said that not a little of the money he took from the dry goods firm was distributed more or less freely in the Tenderloin. From what has been disclosed Vanderloef has been taking about $14,000 or $15,000 out of the VanKeuren & Thornton company every year in addition to his salary. He had been employed as a boy by Mr. VanKeuren, who died several years ago, and had become treasurer of the company. He had the authority to sign checks, and he used it.

CAN'T AGREE

Conciliation in China Now Seems Out of the Question.

Shanghai, Jan. 4.—There is a general belief here that fighting will soon begin again. The withdrawal of Tang Shao Yi as government commissioner to the peace conference practically terminated all negotiations for a cessation of hostilities. Dr. Wang Fang, the leading republican commissioner, has invited Premier Yuan Shih Kai to come to Shanghai himself and carry on the negotiations, but nobody expects that the prime minister will comply, and the revolutionists will certainly not send representatives to Peking.

Tang Shao Yi is keenly disappointed at the hopelessness of the outlook and the failure of his efforts which until lately he felt convinced would lead to peace. He says he has done his best. He will not act against Premier Yuan, whom he does not wish to embarrass, and will not accept a portfolio in the cabinet of President Sun. The latest news from Nanking places the following as members of Sun's cabinet: Premier and minister of war, Huang Hsin; foreign minister, Wang Chao Wei; minister of justice, Wu Ting Fang, and minister of marine, Huang Chung Yen. President Sun has issued a proclamation in which it was stated that each province would be autonomous and would form a federation under a central government. The finances will be reorganized and there will be a reform in taxation.

WANTS A LAW TO PROTECT SWINE

Purdue Expert Would Raise Bar Against Other States.

WAY TO PREVENT HOG CHOLERA

Professor Craig, in Talk Before Indiana Swine Breeders' Association, Says Importation of Hogs From Other States Should Be Guarded Rigorously—Incidentally He Warns Farmers Against a Waste of Money.

Indianapolis, Jan. 4.—In feeding proprietary medicines, "feeds," etc., to hogs afflicted with cholera, hundreds of thousands of dollars were wasted in Indiana last year, according to Robert A. Craig, professor of veterinary science of Purdue university, who talked to the Indiana Swine Breeders' association at their annual session here. Professor Craig said for the most part there was no value whatever to these preparations, and that the breeder who proposes to use them should first know, by analysis, what they contain.

"There ought to be some law by which the sale of such stuff can be regulated," said Professor Craig. "It would mean a saving of these thousands of dollars if it could be made effective."

"In spite of the claims to the contrary of the manufacturers and dealers in these medicines, hog cholera is something real, a disease the Indiana breeder has to fight. As long as you listen to the fellow who has some medicine to sell who tells you there is no such thing as cholera, but that the disease is merely an intestinal infection, you are not only going to lose your own hogs, but are going to spread the infection to the herds of your neighbor."

Professor Craig said the way to prevent hog cholera was to supervise the importation of hogs from states where cholera is known to exist. He said a law should be passed establishing such supervision, with adequate money to enable the officials to enforce it properly.

THRILLING ESCAPE

Woman Hurlled Into Air Falls Safely Upon Engine Pilot.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 4.—When the flyer on the Evansville & Terre Haute railroad struck the buggy in which Mrs. Minnie B. Instead, although the horse was killed and the buggy demolished, Mrs. Allen was hurled into the air and alighted on the engine pilot, escaping with only a severe shaking up and bruises.

Mrs. Allen had tried to heed the warning of the flagman, but the horse became frightened and bolted, running in front of the train.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE BYPRODUCT.

The best things of life come incidentally.

They are byproducts.

Before you have gained wisdom in experience you fancy the battle of life is easiest to win by frontal attack and you smash away at it. Later on you come to see that a flank movement is best.

That is to say:

You try to do something by direct effort and fail. Then you turn your attention to something else, and, lo, you find the which you sought at first.

For instance:

You want to be happy. You try to make yourself happy. You try hard and fail. Then you quit trying and conclude that happiness is not won in that way. You conclude that it is best to make others happy. You try that and find the first thing you know you are happy.

It is the byproduct.

In looking for something else what you want turns up. You have won by the flank movement.

There's popularity.

You want to be popular and you try to be. But somehow your smiles do not win. Somehow people come to see that you are working at the popularity business. You fail. Then you conclude it is better to deserve popularity than to win it; that it is better to try to be lovable than to be lovely.

Then you are popular.

A woman wants to be beautiful. She follows the directions of the experts of the Sunday papers, haunts the beauty parlors, uses face creams and cosmetics and fails. She concludes it is better to have good health and a beautiful soul. She perseveres and—she is beautiful.

It may be so even in making money. You try to get rich quick. You fail. Then you conclude you are not cut out for a millionaire. You decide to go slowly and safely and be content.

And the money comes.

It is the fame. He who sets out to be famous and thinks only of fame is apt to fail. When he reorganizes his life and concludes that it is better to be famous than to acquire it he succeeds. He is famous.

It is the byproduct.

We are built that way.

Do you know that fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles and not cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, and require no internal treatment whatever? Apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely and see how quickly it gives relief. For sale by all dealers.

NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY

Artisan Who Revolutionized for World a Great Industry.

Charles Peterson Discovered the Modern Method of Molding Iron Pipe and Almost Solved Secret of Aviation.

By E. J. EDWARDS.

Charles Peterson was one of the unheralded obscure captains of industry who nevertheless have been of great service in the building of material prosperity of the United States. His name is still a familiar one to some of those who are engaged in manufacturing the iron pipes now so largely used for the carrying of water from reservoirs and gas from tanks through the streets of our cities. In one of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation Peterson is still spoken of with respect, although it is in the most vague manner that his name is associated with the commodities produced by that subsidiary company. You see, it was Peterson who revolutionized for the world the method of making iron pipe, thereby adding millions to the general wealth.

I first met Charles Peterson about 30 years ago. He was then employed as a skilled artisan; in fact, all his life he was so employed, and it was while he was engaged in the manufacture of iron tubes or pipes by hand that he had conceived the idea of the apparatus by means of which today iron pipe is molded by machinery, a revolutionary process.

"The discovery was simple enough," Peterson said to me with a slight accent which betrayed his Swedish birth, of which he was very proud. "I was employed to make hand molds which were used in manufacturing iron pipes, and one day the thought slid into my head that if all this could be done by machinery it would be better or more accurately done, and it would be possible to turn out four or five times as many pipes in a day as could be done by hand work. So I got to thinking, and after a little thinking about it the idea for the apparatus came to me, and I made the model. It worked perfectly, and they tell me it has passed into general use."

"What did you get out of it?" I asked.

He smiled. "Only gratification, nothing else. I made the machine, and it worked. That was enough; somebody else got the money."

"But," said he, "the idea of another kind of machine has come to me, and if it were not for one thing I would make a machine which would drive a balloon or a large kite in any direction, even against the wind. I have long thought that if birds can fly, even heavy birds like eagles or wild geese, there is no reason why a machine which imitated their motions could not be adapted to a kite or a balloon or even fitted with wings, like large sails."

"I worked out the machine all right, but there was just one thing that was lacking. Of course, I could not use coal for generating steam; that would be too heavy. I invented an ammonia engine, but I found that was too expensive and was also unreliable. So I have put my machine aside. Some day some one will discover some kind of fuel which can be used in a machine capable of driving a balloon or a kite in any required direction, even against the wind. When that fuel is obtained I may show the world that it is possible to fly. If I can do that the honor then attached to my name will be worth to me a great deal more than any money."

About eight years ago Charles Peterson died. He lived long enough to learn that the fuel—gasoline—which he expected some one to discover had, in fact, been discovered. But he was old, somewhat infirm, and unable to take advantage of this discovery. And yet as he heard of the initial achievements of the Wright brothers and of the others in the field of aviation, he felt a sense of self-congratulation, for he believed with all his soul that could he have had gasoline 30 years ago, he would have been the first to teach the world how flying could be achieved.

Amazon Rice Raiders.

"Trouble, connected with the high price of rice, again broke out at Pootung on Tuesday, and the fact that the events of the day did not culminate in a riot was due in some measure to fear on the part of the rice shop men and the lack of a sufficient force on the part of the local police," says the North China Daily News. "Had the police been strong enough to have attacked the mob, which was helping itself to rice, there would undoubtedly have been a scuffle."

"As usual in trouble of this kind, it was led by the women of the place, these being for the most part of the class finding a living on the river. Without attempting to bargain with the rice dealers, they simply walked into the shops and helped themselves to the rice."

"The shopkeepers called upon the police, but for a time no assistance was forthcoming. They tried to shut up their shops, but this they were unable to do in the face of the crowd outside."

UPPER INDIANA IS IN ZONE OF EARTHQUAKE

A Distinct Shock Was Felt In Four States.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The steel girders of skyscrapers creaked when two distinct earthquake tremors chased one another up and down Chicago's corporate spine yesterday.

The first tremor, which was felt at 10:18 o'clock, distributed itself over practically northern Illinois and parts of Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana. The second tremor, three minutes later, was not felt in quite so wide an area.

The movements of the earth were felt as far west as Davenport, Ia., and as far east as Fort Wayne, Ind. At Bloomington, Ill., in central Illinois, there was but slight evidence of the 'quake. At Aurora, Ill., the tremor caused the explosion of a great tank of gasoline at the plant of the Fox River Packing company. When the Aurora Beacon went to press in the afternoon it was noticed that the paper did not look natural. The news showed an inexplicable desire to slip off the paper. An investigation showed that the press had been jarred from its base and was not working normally.

Among the Illinois cities and towns that reported the tremors distinctly felt are Joliet, Galesburg, Aurora, Rockford, Kankakee, Mendota, Dixon, Elgin, Freeport and Galena. In Racine, Milwaukee, Janesville and other Wisconsin cities the shock was distinctly felt.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—Arraigned before Judge Wellborn, Olaf A. Tveitmo, Anton Johansen and J. E. Munsey, charged with conspiracy in the transportation of dynamite on passenger trains in violation of federal laws, were given the ten days they asked in which to plead. They are to appear in court again Jan. 12 to answer to charges in the indictment returned last Saturday.

"Nothing to Say."—The Colonel.

New York, Jan. 3.—To those who think that Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy for the presidential nomination this year is the only solution, and to those who would like to be assured once more that he doesn't want to run and cannot be made to, the colonel himself has only one reply, which is: "Nothing to say." He told the reporters who called on him that he was not talking politics and could not be drawn into comment on the efforts to get his name before the voters. "When I have any announcement to make, I will make it publicly and make it myself," he declared.

Woman Killed at Crossing.

Mitchell, Ind., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Sam Gray, aged forty-five, was killed at the station crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad here. Mrs. Gray was on her way to visit a neighbor and was struck by a freight engine which was running backward at a speed of about twenty miles an hour.

Crew's Thrilling Experience.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2.—Hurled by a sixty-mile gale, the four-masted schooner Mary Adelaide Randall crashed on the rocks off Block Island and sank. Her crew of nine lashed themselves to the rigging and hung on until rescued by the Block Island life savers eight hours later.

THIEF FIGHTS WITH DUMMY

But the Automaton Was No Match for the Intruder and Was Knocked Out.

San Francisco.—A burglar who jimmied his way into the bachelor apartments of A. B. Treadwell, police judge, had a desperate hand-to-hand battle with an automaton, operated by the electric burglar alarm, which the judge had devised.

The dummy man was no match for the burglar and now lies hopelessly wrecked with his head crushed, but from the appearance of the room the electric man put up a hard fight. Chairs were overturned and one was broken. The weapon with which the burglar won the battle was a heavy window weight.

The judge lives in a cozy flat. In an alcove just at the head of the stairs stands, or rather stood, a well-designed figure of a man made of plaster of paris and metal. It was life-size and represented a man reading a paper. It was really a work of art and most lifelike.

In the hollow head of the machine-made man was an electric light, which was connected with the house current, so that when any one stepped on the top step of the stairs the current was turned on and the man moved. When the burglar stepped on that step he thought his time had come, as the man seemed ready for him. When he stepped from the step the light went out, but, like a brave thief, he went at his enemy in the dark, using his window weight as a club.

The wreck of the electric man tells the rest of the story. It head is crushed and the one-time work of art is a shattered mass of plaster and metal. The thief escaped.

USED MAIL TO SELL OPIUM

Inspector Says Plan Was to Use Playing Card Boxes—Receipts $200 a Day.

New York.—For sending opium through the mails, in violation of the new penal code, Lee Dick, twenty-six years old, said by postal inspectors to have carried on the most extensive traffic in opium in the country, was held in $1,000 bail for trial by United States Commissioner Craig.

Testifying before Commissioner Craig, Inspector Cortelyou said that Dick received approximately $200 daily for the opium he sent to all parts of the country.

His plan, the inspector said, was to send opium in small tin boxes and playing-card boxes. His patrons, according to the inspector, returned the boxes with the money. Mr. Cortelyou declared Dick's customers are scattered all over the country, as far south as Florida and west almost to the Pacific coast.

Until the new penal code was adopted by the government, persons who sent opium and other habit-forming drugs through the mails were not liable to arrest. The only penalty was confiscation of the drugs when found.

Under the new law, the offender is liable to a fine of $1,000 and two years' imprisonment.

TWO WERE BLIND; NOW SEE

Baltimore Doctor Restores Sense of Men Impaired Fifteen Years Ago.

Baltimore, Md.—Dr. Alexander D. McConachie has succeeded in restoring the sight of two men who were blind.

Although their sight is not wholly clear they can recognize their friends. Dr. McConachie is still in charge of the patients and expects to have their sight fully restored within the next few weeks.

Louis Haley, 40 years old, one of the patients, was stricken blind fifteen years ago while working at his trade as a tailor. He worked several years after being stricken, but as time passed his work became too slow and he was forced to give it up. He went to work in the hospital, where his case was first noticed by Dr. McConachie.

John Carr, the other blind man, was injured in a shop in South Baltimore. The belting of a machine slipped and struck him in the face, causing him to lose his sight. He was first taken to the Mercy hospital, but was later taken to the Franklin Square hospital, where he came under the care of Dr. McConachie.

Delaware Party Enjoy Reverse Hunt, in Which Quarry Escapes From Hounds.

Wilmington, Del.—A party of Delaware fox hunters, who included Joseph Becker, Edward Neher, John M. Hance, John B. Traill and others, unearthed a fine specimen near Newcastle.

The hounds ran well for a time, but suddenly wheeled around and sought cover, with the fox after them.

Hunters joined in the reverse chase. It continued for several miles. Finally other dogs joined the pack and frightened Reynard away. The fox then escaped.

GRIM FOE TAKES "FIGHTING BOB"

Admiral Evans Dead After Illness of Three Hours.

AN ATTACK OF INDIGESTION

Seizure Followed a Luncheon at Which the Old Admiral Was the Gayest of the Gay, and in Three Hours, Bluff Sea-Fighter, Who Had Faced Many a Storm of Shot and Shell, Had Bowled to the Final Foe.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Following an illness of less than three hours, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, familiarly known to the American people as "Fighting Bob" Evans, died at his home in this city at 5 o'clock last evening. An acute attack of indigestion which came on after he had eaten his luncheon, was the cause of death.

With Admiral Evans at the time of his death were his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Harold Sewall. Another daughter, the wife of Captain C. C. Marsh of the United States navy, arrived later from Norfolk. His son, Frank Taylor Evans, is a lieutenant in the navy, attached to the United States ship Mohican, now stationed at Olongapo, in the Philippines. Arrangements for the funeral have been placed in the hands of the navy department. Admiral Evans's body will be accorded all military honors and the burial will take place Friday afternoon in Arlington national cemetery.

According to members of the family, Admiral Evans was to all appearances in the best of health up to the time of his fatal illness. At luncheon he was the gayest person at the table, and laughed and joked all through the meal.

Shortly before 5 o'clock Admiral Evans complained of difficulty in breathing. His daughter, Mrs. Sewall, who was in the room at the moment, propped him up with pillows. The abdomen became distended and the admiral's difficulty in getting his breath increased. Suddenly his head dropped to one side as he lay in this half-sitting posture. In that instant death came.

A Notable Record.

To the country generally "Fighting Bob" Evans was the hero of the new navy. It was his fortune to be on the spot in several seas when decisive action was necessary to uphold his country's dignity, and his method of standing up for the rights of Americans and the glory of the flag sent responsive thrills from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Evans was a commanding figure in big things, a history maker, and although he was denied at the close of his long service the honor he wanted most, a vice admiralty, there was no doubt that he found some compensation in the enthusiastic regard of the people.

In Valparaiso, in 1891, with one gunboat, the Yorktown, to back his words, he bristled up to the Chilean government, brought about an apology for an assault on American sailors, and did as much to enhance the reputation of his country as could have been gained by a battle. It was off Valparaiso that he got his name, "Fighting Bob." He was born in Floyd county, Virginia, on Aug. 18, 1846, and was the son of Dr. Samuel Andrew Jackson Evans. In his boyhood he shot rabbits and got such schooling as rural Virginia afforded in those days. When his father died in 1855, he went to live with his uncle in Washington. Here he attended Gonzaga college, a Catholic institution. In 1860 he was offered an appointment to the naval academy, where he was graduated in 1863. In the civil war he participated in the desperate assault upon and capture of Fort Fisher. A forlorn hope made up of volunteers from the fleet, was sent against the works, regarded up to that time as impregnable. It was one of the most sanguinary assaults of the war. When it was over Midshipman Evans lay amid corpses piled in the trench at the foot of the breastworks, fairly riddled with bullets and half strangled between the dead and dying. He had been shot through both legs and had received many wounds in the body. A bullet through the right knee caused a permanent stiffness. Evans was promoted by act of congress for conspicuous gallantry, and sailed for China in the Delaware, the flagship of Vice Admiral Rowan.

Upon his return to the United States lieutenant Commander Evans was assigned to ordnance duty until 1870, the year he married Charlotte Taylor, a daughter of Frank Taylor of Washington and a granddaughter of General Daniel Morgan. In 1881 he was detailed as equipment officer at the Washington navy yard and became much interested in the practical working of iron and steel. He was a member of the first advisory board, whose report laid the foundation of the new navy. It was upon a resolution offered by Evans that steel was adopted as the material for the construction of our fighting ships.

In 1893 Evans was made a captain, and in 1898, as commander of the battleship Iowa, took part in the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Santiago harbor. Captain Evans was made rear admiral on Feb. 11, 1901. He was in command in the far east in 1904, and was retired in 1905.

STRIKE MAY TIE UP ANTHRACITE MINES

Recognition of the Union Is Insistently Demanded.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 4.—"When we are unable to get recognition of our union and our demands, strike is the only weapon left. Just as nations war when their rights are interfered with, so we must battle when insults are piled upon us."

With these words John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers, greeted 6,000 mine workers last night at a mass meeting in Plymouth. White advocated peace, if peace could right the wrongs of the miners, but he declared in a loud voice that the time has arrived when the demands of the Pottsville convention must be made a reality if the organization is to live and prosper.

He declared that the organization was not in need of money, and that it had the financial backing to carry on a struggle if a repetition of 1902 conditions were forced upon union labor. The miners' chief declared he was ready to give his best efforts to secure the demands the miners seek. He argued against delay and favored fighting the issues out squarely at this time. He charged the operators with irregularities of various sorts, and claimed the bad mining conditions were responsible for such accidents as those at Throop and Cherry Hill, where hundreds of miners had their lives snuffed out.

President White urged the miners to stand like soldiers for their cause. He declared he was a lover of peace and sought peace at all times, but did not wish to purchase it with the rights of the mine workers.

EFFECTUAL PROTESTS

Fish Commissioner Declines to Renew Seine Permits.

Indianapolis, Jan. 1.—George W. Miles, state fish and game commissioner, has declined to renew any permits issued to persons last year for the holding and use of seines for taking carp and similar fish from the streams. The seines held under the permit are either being destroyed or converted into fly-nets for farm horses. The decision not to renew followed a protest made by sportsmen over the state, who claimed the seines, while purchased for a perfectly proper purpose, were being used by the holders for taking all kinds of fish from the streams.

THE PRESIDENT IS DETERMINED

Makes Plain His Position Regarding the Nomination.

HE IS IN THE FIGHT TO STAY

"Nothing but Death Can Keep Me Out of the Fight Now," Mr. Taft Is Quoted as Saying in Answer to the Many Rumors and Suggestions Concerning the Possibility of His Retirement From the Race.

Washington, Jan. 4.—President Taft spoke plainly and to the point for the first time in his occupancy of the White House and for the first time since Colonel Roosevelt and others in the Republican party began practically to doubt his availability for re-election, when he said concerning his immediate future in presidential politics:

"Nothing but death can keep me out of the fight now."

The president added that he had no objection to this statement being made public. The president, it may be said, was not goaded into making this statement. He was in good humor and was just as kindly and pleasant as usual, but he evidently felt that in view of recent rumors and statements and especially in view of Governor Osborn's suggestion that he should retire, the time had come when his exact position should be made known.

For the first time, too, Colonel Roosevelt's position was made known by personal friends in this city. They declared that Roosevelt is in the fight for the nomination and added that they personally waited on Colonel Roosevelt several months ago for the purpose of ascertaining his wishes in the matter. They state that they then declared to Roosevelt that in their opinion Taft could not be re-elected if renominated. They went over the ground with Roosevelt, and declare that they left the ex-president with assurances that they could go forward in their work of organization on his behalf; that he would not interfere with their work, but that they need not expect from him any positive declaration as to his own candidacy; that he would merely sit tight, using one of the ex-president's favorite expressions. So that it may now be stated that the Roosevelt movement has not been a haphazard one without direction, without head or tail, but from the start has had formation and determined purpose, and moreover that the colonel has been fully familiar with what has been going on and that he acquiesced in it and sanctioned it.

It is suspected that President Taft and several of his advisers have all along been well aware of the underlying features of this Roosevelt movement and that knowledge of it, together with recent events, induced the president to make his firm declaration for publication.

Republicans prominent in the affairs of New England, who have all along been especially friendly to Taft and who are not at all friendly to Roosevelt, feel that the situation is becoming so intolerable that eventually it may be necessary to seek for a compromise candidate, and it is their prediction that by the time the Republican assembly in Chicago for their convention, the situation will have developed several Republican candidates for the presidency.

Retire? Never!—La Follette.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Senator La Follette's invasion of Chicago was preceded with an emphatic statement from his campaign manager that he will not withdraw from the race for the Republican nomination for president until the gavel falls in the Chicago convention that will name the party nominee. This was the answer the La Follette manager gave to reports that he was considering getting out of the race.

Bryan Not a Candidate.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 4.—"I cannot conceive of any condition that would make it possible for me to consider the question of my becoming the candidate for president in 1912." So declared W. J. Bryan shortly after his arrival here from Havana. Mr. Bryan expects to attend the Jackson banquet in Washington.

Queen Wilhelmina is unofficially reported to be in an interesting condition.

HIS SALARY WOULD NOT PAY HIS BILLS

Percy Vanderoef Made Free With His Firm's Money.

New York, Jan. 4.—After he had been arraigned in the Center street police court on a charge of larceny, Percy G. Vanderoef, who was treasurer of the VanKeuren & Thornton company, wholesale dealers in dry goods, and in a period of ten years stole about $150,000 from the company, was sent to the Tombs. He made a technical plea of not guilty, but he has confessed and it is understood that he will plead guilty when he is indicted.

If Vanderoef's friends and lawyers are to be believed he could not keep up the pace of his business associates on a salary of $4,000 a year and at the same time pay $1,800 alimony to his wife, who divorced him, and $600 a year for the support of his son. In order to support his mother and sister, with whom he lived in East Orange, Vanderoef says that he had to have more money, but it is also said that not a little of the money he took from the dry goods firm was distributed more or less freely in the Tenderloin. From what has been disclosed Vanderoef has been taking about $14,000 or $15,000 out of the VanKeuren & Thornton company every year in addition to his salary. He had been employed as a boy by Mr. VanKeuren, who died several years ago, and had become treasurer of the company. He had the authority to sign checks, and he used it.

CAN'T AGREE

Conciliation in China Now Seems Out of the Question.

Shanghai, Jan. 4.—There is a general belief here that fighting will soon begin again. The withdrawal of Tang Shao Yi as government commissioner to the peace conference practically terminated all negotiations for a cessation of hostilities. Dr. Wu Ting Fang, the leading republican commissioner, has invited Premier Yuan Shih Kai to come to Shanghai himself and carry on the negotiations, but nobody expects that the prime minister will comply, and the revolutionists will certainly not send representatives to Peking.

Tang Shao Yi is keenly disappointed at the hopelessness of the outlook and the failure of his efforts which until lately he felt convinced would lead to peace. He says he has done his best. He will not act against Premier Yuan, whom he does not wish to embarrass, and will not accept a portfolio in the cabinet of President Sun. The latest news from Nanking places the following as members of Sun's cabinet: Premier and minister of war, Huang Hsin; foreign minister, Wang Chao Wei; minister of justice, Wu Ting Fang, and minister of marine, Huang Chung Yen. President Sun has issued a proclamation in which it was stated that each province would be autonomous and would form a federation under a central government. The finances will be reorganized and there will be a reform in taxation.

WANTS A LAW TO PROTECT SWINE

Purdue Expert Would Raise Bar Against Other States.

WAY TO PREVENT HOG CHOLERA

Professor Craig, in Talk Before Indiana Swine Breeders' Association, Says Importation of Hogs From Other States Should Be Guarded Rigidly—Incidentally He Warns Farmers Against a Waste of Money.

Indianapolis, Jan. 4.—In feeding proprietary medicines, "feeds," etc., to hogs afflicted with cholera, hundreds of thousands of dollars were wasted in Indiana last year, according to Robert A. Craig, professor of veterinary science of Purdue university, who talked to the Indiana Swine Breeders' association at their annual session here. Professor Craig said for the most part there was no value whatever to these preparations, and that the breeder who proposes to use them should first know, by analysis, what they contain.

"There ought to be some law by which the sale of such stuff can be regulated," said Professor Craig. "It would mean a saving of these thousands of dollars if it could be made effective."

"In spite of the claims to the contrary of the manufacturers and dealers in these medicines, hog cholera is something real, a disease the Indiana breeder has to fight. As long as you listen to the fellow who has some medicine to sell who tells you there is no such thing as cholera, but that the disease is merely an intestinal infection, you are not only going to lose your own hogs, but are going to spread the infection to the herds of your neighbor."

Professor Craig said the way to prevent hog cholera was to supervise the importation of hogs from states where cholera is known to exist. He said a law should be passed establishing such supervision, with adequate money to enable the officials to enforce it properly.

THRILLING ESCAPE

Woman Hurlled Into Air Falls Safely Upon Engine Pilot.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 4.—When the flyer on the Evansville & Terre Haute railroad struck the buggy in which Mrs. Minnie B. Allen was riding, bystanders expected to see her body ground to pieces beneath the wheels of the train. Instead, although the horse was killed and the buggy demolished, Mrs. Allen was hurled into the air and alighted on the engine pilot, escaping with only a severe shaking up and bruises.

Mrs. Allen had tried to heed the warning of the flagman, but the horse became frightened and bolted, running in front of the train.

Hospital Guard Exonerated.

Religion as Satisfaction

By Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, Pastor of Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian Church, Chicago

TEXT—One thing thou lackest.—Mark 10:21.

This is a character study in black and white. The picture is drawn by a determined hand and there is no hint of hesitation. Stroke follows stroke until the complete portrait is before us. The story is as complete as it is concise. It begins in comedy and ends in tragedy. The young man, impulsive, optimistic and temperamentally enthusiastic, hurries breathlessly into the presence of Jesus with the long hushed question of his heart upon his lips, and then when our hopes for him are highest we behold him making what Dante calls "The Great Refusal" and returns to his old life as ill at ease and with his heart as hungry as ever.

Let us not misunderstand this young man. He was no comedian trifling with sacred things and then casting them thoughtlessly away from him. He was intense, enthusiastic, a nobleman at heart, and when Jesus looked upon him he fell in love with him. He had climbed the ladder of lawful ambition, and while still a young man was in the council of the elders. Honor did not spoil the humility of his heart, and in the presence of the Master he bowed in graceful reverence. Richly endowed with worldly wealth, he was still more richly endowed with a nature rich in the virtues that make for righteousness.

Jesus was intensely interested in this young man. We read that "He loved him." I think he was interested in him on account of his youth. Christ and young manhood, as has been said, are as magnet and steel. This young man had all his life to live. The years with all their possible achievements were still before him.

Christ was interested in this young man because he was rich. Riches and wealth meant power, and power is another name for responsibility. Jesus spoke hard words about rich men and about rich men who loved money, who trusted in money, who because of their money forgot about God. Jesus, however, did not despise a man because he was rich. He loved the rich young ruler. It was a rich man who begged his lifeless body as it hung unclaimed upon the cross. Two rich men took his dead body and wrapped it tenderly in the choicest of linen and laid it away in a costly sepulcher.

Jesus knows and recognizes no class. Riches and poverty to him are but the tools with which character fashions circumstances. "The man's the gowd for a' that." It is written of him that "he made his grave with the rich in his death." There is pathos and tragedy in that sentence. "Must the Master wait till death to dwell in the habitations of the rich?" May he not make his abode with the rich in his life? Let the rich man open the door and Christ will enter in to share his lonely isolation, and will satisfy the hunger of his heart.

Jesus was interested in this young man because he was moral. His life was pure and his hands clean. For him a good name was better than great riches. He followed the quest of the best. He was one of the Knights of the Round Table, who had pledged his honor to "live sweet life of purest chastity." To gain the love and admiration of Jesus it is not necessary to wander off into forbidden paths of sin, and to run the gauntlet of a dissipated life. For all young men who are fighting sin and the devil and carrying a clean conscience in the midst of contaminating circumstances Jesus has a warm welcome.

Jesus was interested in this young man, who, with his youth, his position, his influence, his purity of life, was still dissatisfied and came with the cry of unrest "What lack I yet?" This is a wonderful thing that he should have so much and yet not have enough.

Jesus answered the young man's question by a command. "Come, follow me." In a great book recently published there is this striking sentence, "If the gods went their way and were satisfied, and the beasts went their way and were satisfied, the unrest of man can only mean that he is not rightly related to his present life." Now, is not that just the truth? How can a man be rightly related to this present life in which he is set if he leaves out God and refuses to become related to the eternal realities that lie all around him, in the world of truth and beauty and goodness? Are youth, and worldly honor, and riches the only things that life needs to be related to? Out of all these human relationships the cry is heard, "What lack I yet?" And Jesus responds promptly, "You lack the love and the light of the presence of the God of truth."

The human heart is homeless until it finds the Heavenly Father. Find God, and you find rest and peace and satisfaction. Religion is satisfaction. Religion completes life and perfects love, and only in the presence of God is the soul satisfied.

No sacrifice is too great to gain this great treasure. "Sell all that you have and give to the poor if necessary." Let nothing hold you back from following after Christ in the life of self-surrender and loving service.

B. & O. CLAIM AGENT

Sends Some Excellent Rules to Members of Staff.

General Claim Agent Egan of the B. & O. is sending out to the road claim agents a code of rules which observe the principles of the Golden Rule. He has sent to his staff some rules which it is claimed strike the keynote of 20th century railroad methods. His ideas have not yet worked into all departments of all of the rail roads. The short paragraph rules sent to his staff by Mr. Egan are "Be polite and kind to the poor. Remember that many an honest heart beats beneath the ragged coat, and a kind word during life is worth the best sermon ever preached after death."

"Do not be deceitful. Tell the truth and take your medicine; it is better for your conscience, the Company and your fellow men."

"Do not be a colossal knocker. Life is but a flash at best. We should help instead of knock."

"Be honest. Because a claimant is poor, do not take advantage of him nor his condition. Fate may lead you his way some day."

"Be frank in all things. If a claimant asks your advice, give it openly and freely. If your advice is not taken, your duty has been done."

"Be courteous. In dealing with the public, do not endeavor to create the impression that you own the road. Remember that the railroad is but the servant of the people."

"Be ever patient. Patience is a virtue which few men possess. If a claimant vilifies you and says all manner of things against you, treat him with all the politeness and kindness you possess, and ere the year has passed he will bemoan the fact that he made an ass of himself."

The commissioners awarded the contract for furnishing the shades for the new court house to Leroy Miller of Seymour. The Gold Mine Cash Store at Ewing was given the contract for furnishing the supplies for the county poor asylum for this quarter. Dr. Fred Heller was appointed physician for the poor farm and jail for this year.

Making a Thermometer.
A thermometer is so simple and inexpensive that any boy can have one of his own.
The materials needed are a piece of glass tube with a hair-like bore, some mercury and a piece of wood on which to mount the tube.
Take the glass tube and heat one end of it; then blow into the tube until a bulb appears at the end. Next fill the bulb with the mercury, heat the open end and close it. Now mount the tube on the wooden base. When this is done put the thermometer into boiling water and when the mercury rises as far as it can mark 100 degrees on the wooden base. Now put the thermometer into crushed ice, and where the mercury settles mark 0 degree on the base of the thermometer. Divide the space between 0 and 100 degrees into a hundred numbered parts and the thermometer is finished.

Words by JOE MCCARTHY
Moderato.

Music by AL. PIANTADOSI

1. In a lit-tle town a-way out west, There lives the one that I love best, I
2. I re-mem-ber when I met her, Oh, I nev-er can for-get her, I went call her "Moth-er's Child,"..... She's so fas-ci-nat-ing, cap-ti-vat-ing cra-zy when she smiled. When she rolled a-round her eyes, I thought that Keeps my heart a-pal-pi-tat-ing, Oh,.... I'm al-most wild, She don't care a

I was hyp-no-tized, And oh, my heart... went al-most wild, When she took me bit for me, I know, But I'm just cra-zy 'bout her and I'll tell her so;

with her lit-tle hand, I knew from right then on, I was at her command,

At the close of day we'll steal a-way where we can be a-lone, And then I'm going to tell my own:
For that feel-ing came a-steal-ing, On-ly lov-ers un-der-stand, When she mur-mured this so grand:

REFRAIN.
Moth-er's Child, I'm cra-zy 'bout you, lov-ey; Moth-er's Child,
Moth-er's Child, You send that feel-ing creep-ing; Moth-er's Child,

You lit-tle lov-ey dov-ey, Come and hug me, dar-ling, will you?
Am I a-wake or sleep-ing? (Omit.)

When I squeeze, I'm going to kill you, Oh!..... don't be so mild;.....

Lord, your ways have set me wild, Wild a-bout you, Moth-er's Child....

CHAPTER XXIX.

As time went on, however, if his uneasiness were not sensibly diminished, nothing happened, the voyage proving entirely uneventful; and O'Rourke was forced to the conclusion that, if Monsieur de Hyeres were really the Vicomte des Trebes, he was strangely content to play a waiting game.

The Irishman, however, had known stranger things than that one man should seem the counterpart of another. And by nothing more than this questionable accident of resemblance did De Hyeres give him reason to believe him anything but what he claimed to be. The man's demeanor was consistently discreet and self-contained; he moved about the ship openly and without any apparent attempt to pry upon the doings of the adventurer, whom he fell into the easy ship-board way of greeting amiably but coolly. Only in one instance, indeed, did they exchange more than but courteous salutations, and then De Hyeres himself seemed to seek the interview, approaching O'Rourke directly.

This was at night, when O'Rourke occupied a chair on the leeward side of the saloon deck, consuming a meditative after-dinner cigar. De Hyeres stepped out of the companionway, glanced swiftly this way and that, and sauntered toward the Irishman with an unlighted cigarette held conspicuously between his fingers.

O'Rourke likewise surveyed his surroundings in two brief glances; and was contented to find that they were alone, or as much alone as two can be upon a steamship. For they were, after all, well matched; and one of them he knew to be armed. Shifting in his chair so that his revolver lay convenient to his hand, as De Hyeres approached the Irishman removed his cigar from between his teeth, flicked away an inch of ash and silently proffered it in the prescribed fashion.

The Frenchman accepted the courtesy with a bow, applied the fire to his cigarette, inhaled deeply and returned the cigar with a formal phrase of thanks. He lingered for a moment, puffing and gazing off over the black, starlit expanse of the Bay of Bengal, lonely to its dim and far horizon, then observed quietly: "I am not mistaken, I believe, in understanding I have the honor to address Monsieur le Colonel O'Rourke, Chevalier of the Legion of Honour?"

"You are not mistaken, monsieur," returned O'Rourke pleasantly, then with the directness which he sometimes found useful, watching the man closely as he spoke: "And I believe it is my pleasure to recognize Monsieur Le Vicomte des Trebes?"

"Des Trebes, monsieur?" The Frenchman's look of wonder was beyond criticism and there was no least trace of discomfiture to be detected in his manner. "But no. You are under a mistake. I am merely a French gentleman without a title; Raoul de Hyeres is my name."

"Ah!" said the wanderer. "Twas the resemblance misled me. Pardon, monsieur."

"Granted, my dear sir. . . Des Trebes? The name has a familiar sound. Do I not remember reading somewhere that the Vicomte des Trebes died last spring? In Tunis, was it? . . . Suddenly, I believe."

deck or at meals, Danny sat behind bolts, alert and under arms, and vice versa. By night they stood guard watches together, the one on guard while the other slept. Clearly the adventurer was determined that no lack of safeguards on his part should again deprive him of the ruby.

But it's no easy matter to avoid meeting any particular person on a ship with a small saloon list, unless one is willing to be purposely rude and discourteous. For all his wariness the Irishman was to carry with him a personal impression of Miss Pynsent.

On the last day of the passage, toward evening, the Poonah raised the coast of Burmah; by dark she was steaming steadily southwards along the littoral, heading for the delta of the Irrawaddy.

A still, bright night with little wind: O'Rourke was not one to resist its allure. Four bells saw him lounging at the rail below the bridge, staring hungrily over toward the land. It was in his mind that another twelve hours or so would see him relieved of his trust; and as the time drew nigh impatience burned hotly within him; he had become full weary of the Pool of Flame and was anxious to be free of the thing, to have its chapter in his history closed forever.

Far over the water a white and flashing light lifted up and caught his eye, a nameless beacon bright against the darkness at the base of the Arakan hills, guardian of the perils of those shallow seas. And simultaneously he became conscious of a presence at his elbow; as he turned sharply the English girl addressed him in a voice sweet-toned and quiet.

"What is that light, if you please, Colonel O'Rourke?"

"Faith, that I can't say, Miss Pynsent."

Her eyes flashed a laugh upon him in the gloom. "Then you know my name?"

"Even as yourself knew mine. 'Twould be strange otherwise, with our ship's company so small."

"But I," she returned, animated, "am such an insignificant person—while you are the Colonel O'Rourke."

"Ye do me an honor I'm not deserving, Miss Pynsent, but 'tis proud I am entirely that a humble soldier of fortune should be known to ye by reputation."

"Oh, I've grown quite weary of your fame, Colonel O'Rourke," she counted.

The Frenchman Accepted the Courtesy With a Bow.

tered with a trace of laughing impudence. "Hardly anything has interested Monsieur De Hyeres, these past few days, save anecdotes of your exploits."

"Tis kind of him, to be sure. I must cultivate his acquaintance and learn from him to know myself, I see."

If she detected the irony she overlooked or failed to understand it. "He's very entertaining," she commented, pleasantly. "But then most Frenchmen are, don't you think? I hope to see much of him in Rangoon."

"So he's landing there, too?" O'Rourke filled in the pause.

"I believe so. And you, Colonel O'Rourke?"

"I may have to wait over until the next steamer," he admitted warily.

"I sympathize heartily with your disgust at the prospect," laughed the girl.

"Eh? And why? 'Tis a land of fair repute for climate and beauty."

"Ah, but I live in Burmah, you see, and so have come to know it far too well. But that's the way with all expatriates, isn't it—to hate their homes so far from home?"

"Must ye endure it, then, Miss Pynsent?"

"An orphan has little choice. It seems my kismet to abide in Rangoon forever and a day. You see, my only living relative is an uncle, Mr. Lansdowne Sypher, and he's got no one else to keep house for him."

early excuse to terminate the conversation, and ungallantly withdrew to the seclusion of his stateroom, where he passed a night that seemed interminable; for he lay long in a wakeful panic of imagination, scheming out a hundred stratagems whereby he might confuse as many possible attempts to prevent the due and safe delivery of the Pool of Flame into the hands of Mr. Lansdowne Sypher.

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus over-coming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Seymour only at our store.—The Rexall Store. The Andrews Drug Co.

Life's Weary Round.

Nothing to do till tomorrow,
And then all over again
The roar of the spindle and shuttle,
The scrape and the scratch of the pen,
Nothing to do till tomorrow,
And then the same purpose, same plan,
In the day-after-dayness of living
That conquers the spirit of man,
Nothing to do till tomorrow,
And then all the old worry o'er,
Each day—but for grace of its dreaming—
The same as the day before!—

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. Sold by all dealers.

Tried to Board Moving Train.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 2.—After visiting friends in this city, Orville Coffman, aged twenty-six, son of a farmer near Cloverdale, attempted to board a Monon train while it was in motion and was ground to death beneath the wheels.

When given as soon as the croupy cough appears Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will ward off an attack of croup and prevent all danger and cause of anxiety. Thousands of mothers use it successfully. Sold by all dealers.

Britain's Tongues.

Within the narrow compass of the British Isles no fewer than seven languages are spoken. They are English, Welsh, Erse (in Ireland), Manx (in the Isle of Man, where, until recently, church services were conducted in that tongue), Gaelic (in Scotland), French in the Channel Islands, and Cornish in Cornwall. Though the total for his own islands is seven tongues, yet is the Englishman said to be the poorest linguist in the world.

As We Speak It.

A German who had come to America to master our language was being shown behind the scenes of a vaudeville theater by one of his American friends. "That man," said the American, indicating an actor with a wave of his hand, "is taking off his make-up to make-up for another take-off."

The German departed, spluttering.—Success

When buying a cough medicine for children bear in mind that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is most effectual for colds, croup, whooping cough and that it contains no harmful drug.

LEGEND OF THE MISTLETOE

Some Claim Goddesses Kissed All Who Passed Under Plant as Symbol of Love.

(By E. R. GAILLARD.) According to Scandinavian mythology, Loki (the god of evil) was the sworn enemy of Baldr (the god of light), and tried by every means in his power to kill him, but failed because he was invulnerable to everything that came from earth—air, fire, or water. Loki, at last, conceived the idea that the mistletoe, springing from neither, would serve his purpose, and, having an arrow made from that wood, he helped Hodl (the blind god of darkness), to aim it, and Baldr fell dead—shot through the heart.

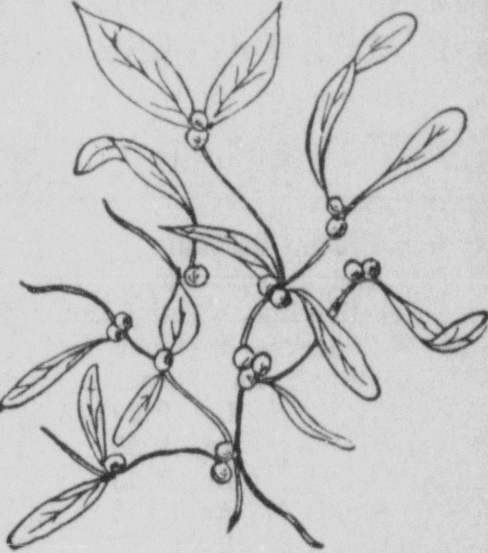

All the gods and goddesses prayed for his restoration to life, and when the prayer was granted it was decreed that the mistletoe should nevermore have power to do harm unless it touched the earth, and the goddess of love was appointed to guard it.

Some legends claim that the goddess kissed all who passed under the plant as a token that it was no longer a weapon of death, but a symbol of love, while others assert that she exacted a kiss from each as a propitiation, or the bough should be allowed to work harm.

Another reason for the kissing privilege conferred by the plant is said to be that a lovely maiden preferred death to the kisses of an old monk who pursued her, and her prayers for deliverance were answered by transforming her into a mistletoe branch and placing her in a tree.

The monk waited for her return, but rather than that, she clasped the tree and remained clinging to it, leaving the waiting monk to kiss whom-ever he could catch.

The custom of "kissing beneath the mistletoe" is so old that no one knows when or how it originated; but when young people are found selecting the branches that have the most berries on, it is fair to suppose that they know a kiss must be given for each berry plucked, and that the ceremony is never complete until every berry is off the branch.

There was once a common, though mistaken belief that the mistletoe grew on oak trees only, but that was so far from true that the Druids, who held the oak as absolutely sacred because they believed it to represent the One Supreme God, deemed the mistletoe doubly sacred if found on one, and carefully guarded it until the sixth day after the first new moon of each year.

When this time arrived, priests robed in white surrounded the tree and held solemn ceremonies, among which was the sacrifice of two white bulls.

After the ceremonies, a priest in spotless robes ascended the tree and, with a golden knife, cut the mistletoe and let it fall on to a white cloth held by other priests.

The branches were then formally "blessed" and divided among the people who believed the sprays given them to have miraculous powers.

The common belief in the efficacy of the plant was such that it was called all-heal; but according to an old legend, a certain lover searched many days for a specimen growing on an oak tree, that he might secure its branches for the cure of his betrothed, who was sick unto death, but when he found it he touched the sap while cutting the branches, and fell dead near the tree, indicating that the sap was a deadly poison.

The plant thrives in America from New Jersey southward and westward, and those who know it only as a part of Christmas decorations can have little idea of how often it overruns trees to the extent of being a nuisance.

MAKING HAND SLED OF PIPE

Can Be Constructed in Few Hours and When Complete Is Much Better Than Wooden Article.

The accompanying sketch shows how an ordinary hand sled can be made of three-quarter-inch pipe and fittings. Each runner is made of one piece of pipe bent to the proper shape. This can be accomplished by filling the pipe with melted rosin or lead, then bending in the shape desired, and afterward removing the rosin or lead by heat. Each joint is turned up tightly and well pinned or brazed. One of the top crosspieces will need to have right-hand and left-hand threads or to be fitted with a union. Also, one of the top pieces connecting the rear part to the front part of each runner must be fitted in the same way. The top is fastened to the two crosspieces.

Such a hand sled can be made in a few hours' time and when complete is much better than a wood sled.

His Grammar Was Good.

"That old man walking along these lives over the river," said a boy, who had taken the prize for excellence in grammar.

"What?" exclaimed the father. "Have you forgotten your grammar so soon? You can say that he lives on the other side of the river, but 'over the river' is incorrect."

"I beg your pardon, father; but as does live over the river."

"Why?"

"He lives over the river, because he lives on that little house on the bridge."

RAM'S HORN BROWN.

Going back often begins by looking back.

The man who would be a leader must be the first to start.

It never makes a sin any whiter to call it a mistake.

The man who goes out to look for trouble will have a short walk.

A whole Noah's ark full of sin can hide behind a single doubt.

The man who always looks for good could not be in any better business.

Thousands of Eyes See "Republican Want Ads"

Helpful Anyhow.

They were discussing an absentee, and not all of their remarks were favorable. One, however, spoke in his defense. "Whatever his failings may be," he said, "he thinks of more little ways of being helpful than any other person I know. One day I was with him at a ferry house where a crowd was waiting for the boat. Suddenly he left me and walked toward a woman who was struggling with a three-year-old and a number of parcels. Our friend raised his hat, spoke to the woman, and then I saw him grapple her parcels. Soon he returned to my side and I asked him, 'What was it?' 'Oh, nothing,' he said carelessly. 'She had too many parcels. I put a rubber band around them and bunched them into one.' I was disgusted with myself that I had not thought of that simple little expedient for helping the woman, and ever since that time I have had much respect for our friend, although I can't indorse all of his ways."
